Chicago, May 19—Mordca Brown, the once great three fingered pitching marvel, is going to retire—not right away, but at the end of the 1916 season. Last year he made quite a record for himself in the Federal league. His showing was so good that Joe Tinker, manager of the Cubs, believed the great heaver had a season or two more of usefulness left and signed him up for the 1916 season. Brown claims his arm is as strong as ever, but he is beginning to tire of traveling around the country and will hang up his baseball shoes at the end of the present campaign. Brown is one of the greatest pitchers the game ever developed.
